Teach Yourself Rungus Tudukai-no I Kondiri do Rungus

- Misingilo-oku do Rungus -

Dear friends, you will realize that it is not easy for me to write these notes concerning your language. It is 15 years, since i last visited Sabah. Over 35 years i had collected data for writing the Rungus Grammar to be printed in Kudat in 1992. There were only 200 copies. Now having started to rewrite these lessons the other way round so that English readers could improve their Rungus, this brings some problems with it. By proceeding to the next lessons i realize where something should have been explained earlier or only added later on, I have first hesitated to improve immediately what so far has been published in FB. But at this point, i should like to make you already now familiar to my alterations of what you have already in FB. Therefore i present you with everything i have written in the first five lessons and add, how i want to make the next steps. By early November2012, i could finish these lessons and do hope that you will be able to make use of them for your benefit. Traugott A. Forschner Filderstadt

Introduction:

For years I have been communicating with young people in Malaysia via Facebook, using either Rungus or English. Manymore are just keeping on writing in Bahasa Melayu, as they had learnt in school, telling me that they do not know or are not used to use the language of their ancestors. Some even blame their parents having not taught them their own language. While encouraging them to make use of Rungus, (Gonsomon, Nulu and Tobilung have only a few alterations in pronouncing) I notice that one of the problems is the different way of writing (spelling) and speaking (pronouncing) a word. This is a problem, the colonial government brought to Malaysia.

In Malaya, children learning to read the Al Quoran, learned the Javi alphabet letters. Then the English introduced Latin writing as used in England and taught the children the English ABC, even so it was written different from being pronounced. The problem was this difference between spelling and speaking (pronouncing). And the Dutch, occupying the islands of what today is Indonesia, introduced another way of writing Malay according how the Dutch language in the Netherlands is spoken and written.

A simple way of explaining what Phonology is about.

When in 1957 we started a Bible School at Sikuati, I noticed that Majimil, Diyun, Osuman and Angkangon who could read some Malay words, used the English ABC saying, E,Bi,Si, Di, I, Ef, Ji, Etsh, Ai, Ka, El, Em, En, O, Pe, Kuw, Ar, Es, Ti, Yu, Fau, Doppleyou, Ex, Wai, Zet, which fitted not at all to the written Malay words in the Laubach Learner Book.

So we started again right from the beginning, giving with a picture a symbol for each letter: A like agong (Gong), B like busul, bola, (bottom, ball), D like dalus, dohon, (sea shell, me) E like enggaton (pinang palm tree), G like godingan (Elephant), H like hakod (legs) I like idi, aki (mother, grandfather), K like kabang (open mouth), L like lasag (sail post), M like mato (eyebrow), N like nizu (coconut seedling) O like orod (arm or finger ring), P like pazas (Papaya), R like radu (plough), S like sinikit (flame burning), T like tungkat (walking stick), U like ulu (head), V like valai (house), Z like nizu, pazas, mozo, ozi, mizon (coconut, Papaya, to follow, to like, to live at) and the diphtongs AI like vaig, dalai, (water, maize or corn), AU like anavau, (light), karabau (water buffalo), magazau (to cook) OI like oroloi (like) iokoi (we exclusive), OU like osilou (yellow), ikou (you plural), with each letter being represented by a picture (a gong, bottom of a child, seashell) even finding for the letter G a godingan (elephant with the trunk).

So in the end each letter of the alphabet as used for all the Rungus words had the appropriate image. And being eventually copied, we had a little Primer for Rungus. To practice reading, a little booklet to be added to the primer was written by the four fathers of the first children learning to read and write at Sikuati explaining the life in the longhouse, of which I add to each lesson a passage for reading practice and that whole First Reader in Rungus. To show the difference between spelling and speaking (pronouncing) I use the brackets []

1. Lesson: The vowels [wauls] I kiuni om diphtongs piuni Phonology

Once again a simple way of explaining what Phonology is about as mentioned before: When in 1957 we started a Bible School at Sikuati, I noticed that also Majimil, Diyun, Osuman and Angkangon could read some Malay words, they used the English ABC saying, E,Bi,Si, Di,I, Ef, Ji, Etsh, Ai, Ka, El, Em, En, O, Pe, Kuw, Ar, Es, Ti, Yu, Fau, Doppleyou, Ex, Ypslinon,Zet, which fitted not at all to the written words in the Laubach Learner Book.

So we started again right from the beginning, giving with a picture a symbol for each letter: A like agong (Gong), B like busul, bola, (bottom, ball), D like dalus, dohon, (sea shell, me) E like enggaton (pinang palm tree), G like godingan (Elephant, H like hakod (legs) I like idi, aki (mother, grandfather), K like kabang (open mouth), L like lasag (sail post), M like mato (eyebrow), N like nizu (coconut seedling) O like orod (arm or finger ring), P like pazas (Papaya), R like radu (plough), S like sinikit (flame burning), T like tungkat (walking stick), U like ulu (head), V like valai (house), Z like nizu, pazas, mozo, ozi, mizon (coconut, Papaya, to follow, to like, to live at) and the diphtongs AI like vaig, dalai, (water, maize or corn), AU like anavau, (light), karabau (water buffalo), magazau (to cook) OI like oroloi (like) iokoi (we exclusive), OU like osilou (yellow), ikou (you plural), with each letter being represented by a picture (a gong, bottom of a child, seashell) even finding for the letter G a godingan (elephant with the trunk).The other letters are called consonants - koruhang di kiuni. Kabang mamakai di munung, dila ko itatalanan antava it odung b,p, f, ko m, n, ng om i iadinoi.

So in the end each letter of the alphabet as used for all the Rungus words had the appropriate image. And being eventually copied, we had a little Primer for Rungus.

For the moment, I try to explain the use of what in English is called “vowel” [waul] and to show the difference between spelling and speaking (pronouncing) I use brackets [] Vowel means the letter itself produces a sound = i hurup di kiuni nga varo uni kondiri

a) I kiuni vowel

✚ There are five vowels a, e, i, o, u. Varo limo hurup a, e, i, o, u.

✚ Iadino it uni ong “a” = agong, ama, amu, aki, magavang, avantang, avasih

- ong “e” = enggaton, engin, elo, megol,
- ong “i” = idi, inai, i valai, Dinihizan, iti, ino, iri
- ong “o” = oho, Ozong, Orong, ongkukul,
- ong “u” = ulu, ungkamang, uni, unopot, undiri,

b) Diphtongs -Piuni, two vowels (kiuni) are joined together as diphtongs (piuni), whereby the second kiuni is in the international alphabet often called as being not active or voiceless) It occurs in the second syllable. When used with suffix -an the second kiuni can change into “z” puvalazan or “h” kovosihan

- ong “ai” = amai, inai, valai, sungkabai, dahai, anggai
- ong “au” = karabau, dau, ginazau
- ong “oi” = oroloi, iokoi,
- ong “ou” = tokou, mangarazou but rozohon

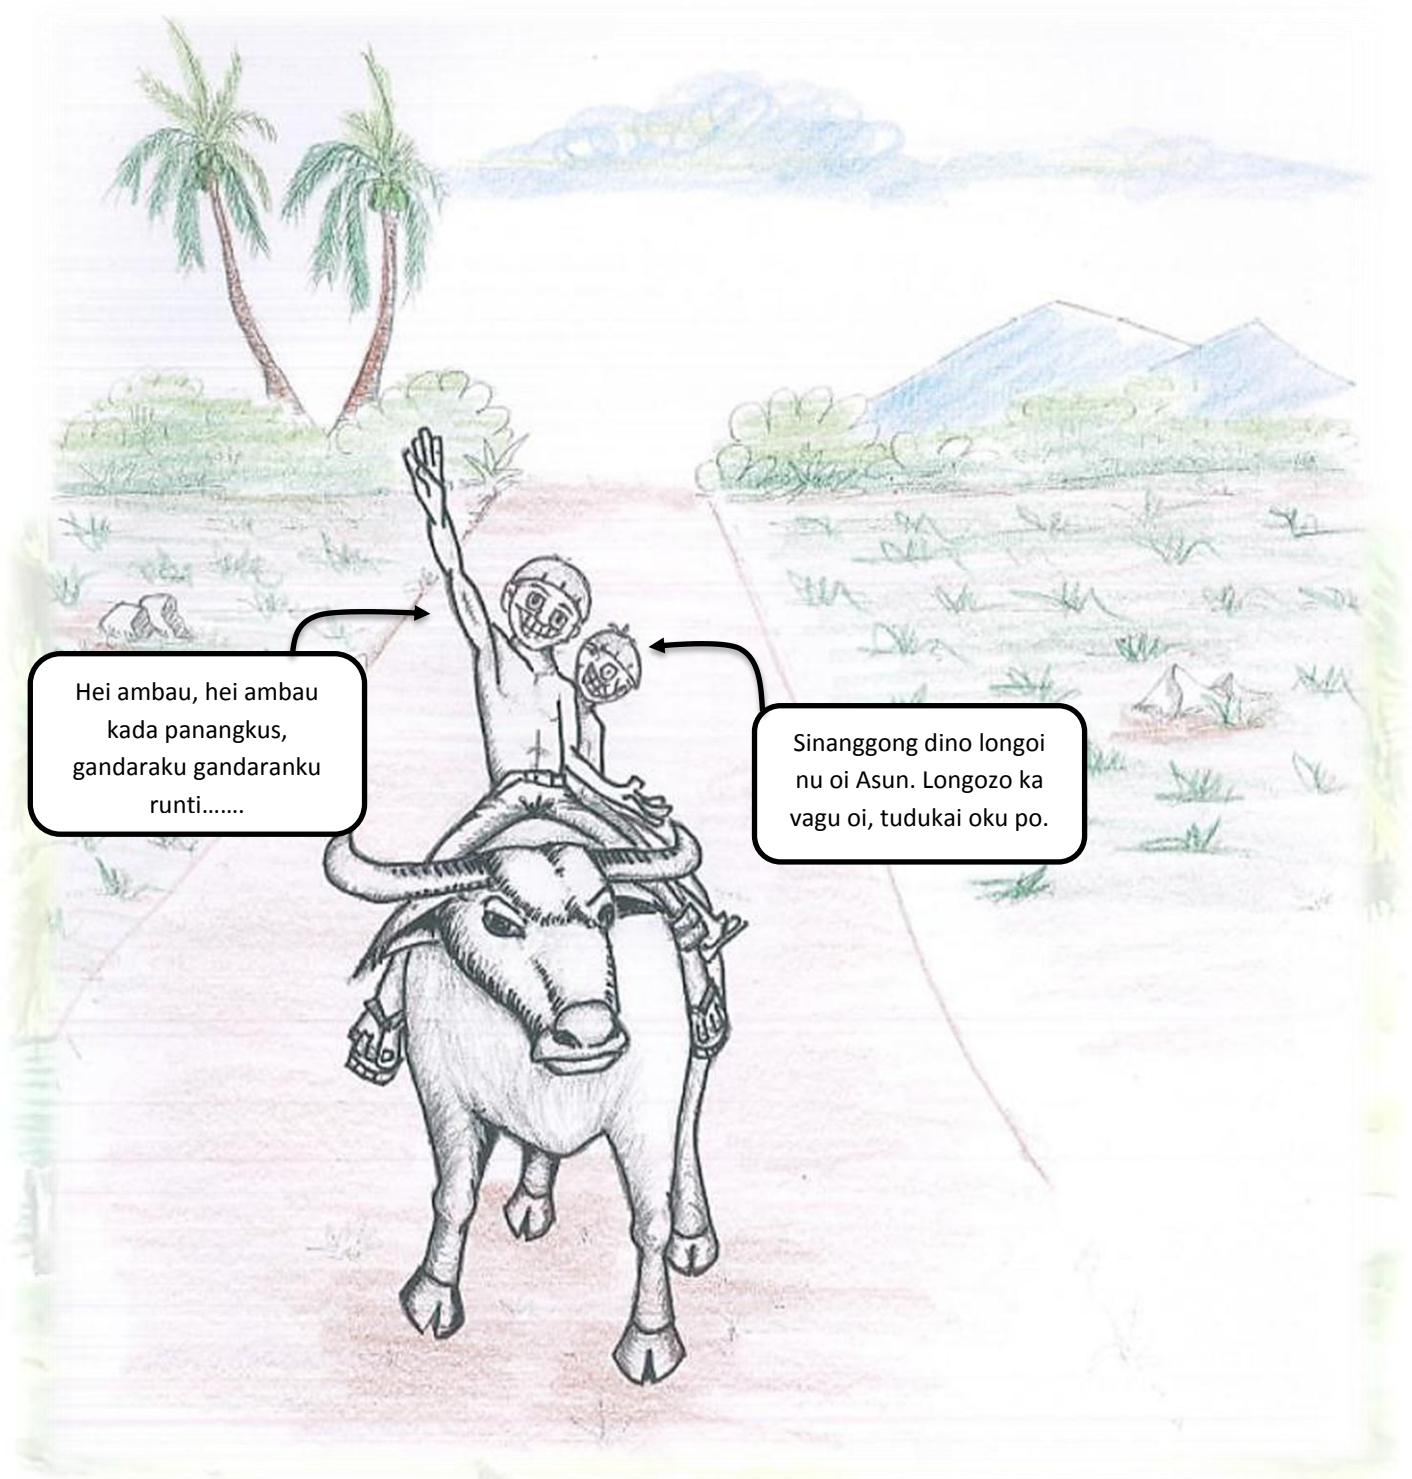

For reading praxis read a little story: Arun and Asun in the kampong_

1. I Arun om i Asun:

Varo duvo ot anak sompi kusai. I ngaran di keso dino i Asun. I ngaran di koduvo dino i Arun. I Asun om i Arun dino banalko mianggai.

I Asun dino agazo-no. I Arun dino opodok-po. Sumako i Asun sid karabau. Miambutul i Arun. Rumikot i karabau sid buvatan

Hei ambau, hei ambau

vagu oi, tudukai oku po.

You notice that before every noun or name is a marker, in English called article. With lesson two we shall learn how to use such markers before names and objects indicating the position of the noun or pronoun in the sentence.

Take Note: Any person all over the world will be able to read and pronounce this story without having knowledge of Momogun. He/she will be understood, as there is no difference between spelling and pronouncing. The person has only to keep in mind: One does not give any syllable a stress or emphasis.

Second Lesson: The marker or article, which points out and qualifies that a noun follows There are two articles in English, a definite and an indefinite article or marker a and the a) indefinite marker: a man, a woman, a house, a thing, a school, a tool, a pencil, a problem. In front of a noun with an initial vowel, an “n” is added: an egg, an elephant, an apple, an animal b) the definite marker: The house, the boy, the girl, the door, the church, the office, the tree, which refers to a particular house, boy, girl, door or church...

The Rungus marker, ino-no i hurup di monuduk do mozo i pongoretan, i retan dot adjective (ong English) i (it), di (dit), o (ot), do (dot) apakai pengkaa dino:

is “i” followed by a “t” before nouns with an initial vowel: i valai, it uva, i riniba, i pomogunan, i kampong, i vulan, i pongitungan, i kavavalazan but: it anak, it aki, i karabau, i pongitungan, i vusak, it uva, it ombuvoi, it ongkukul, ong kodung i pongoretan varo kiuni sid kotimpuunan.

Referring to any house uses the marker “varo” Varo valai sid himbaan, varo’t ulun sid sulap. Different from English which only uses the article “the” and “a” for any noun, whether being the subject or object in the sentence, Rungus uses a marker “di/dit” and “do/dot” before the noun, when the noun/name is not the subject of the matter expressed.

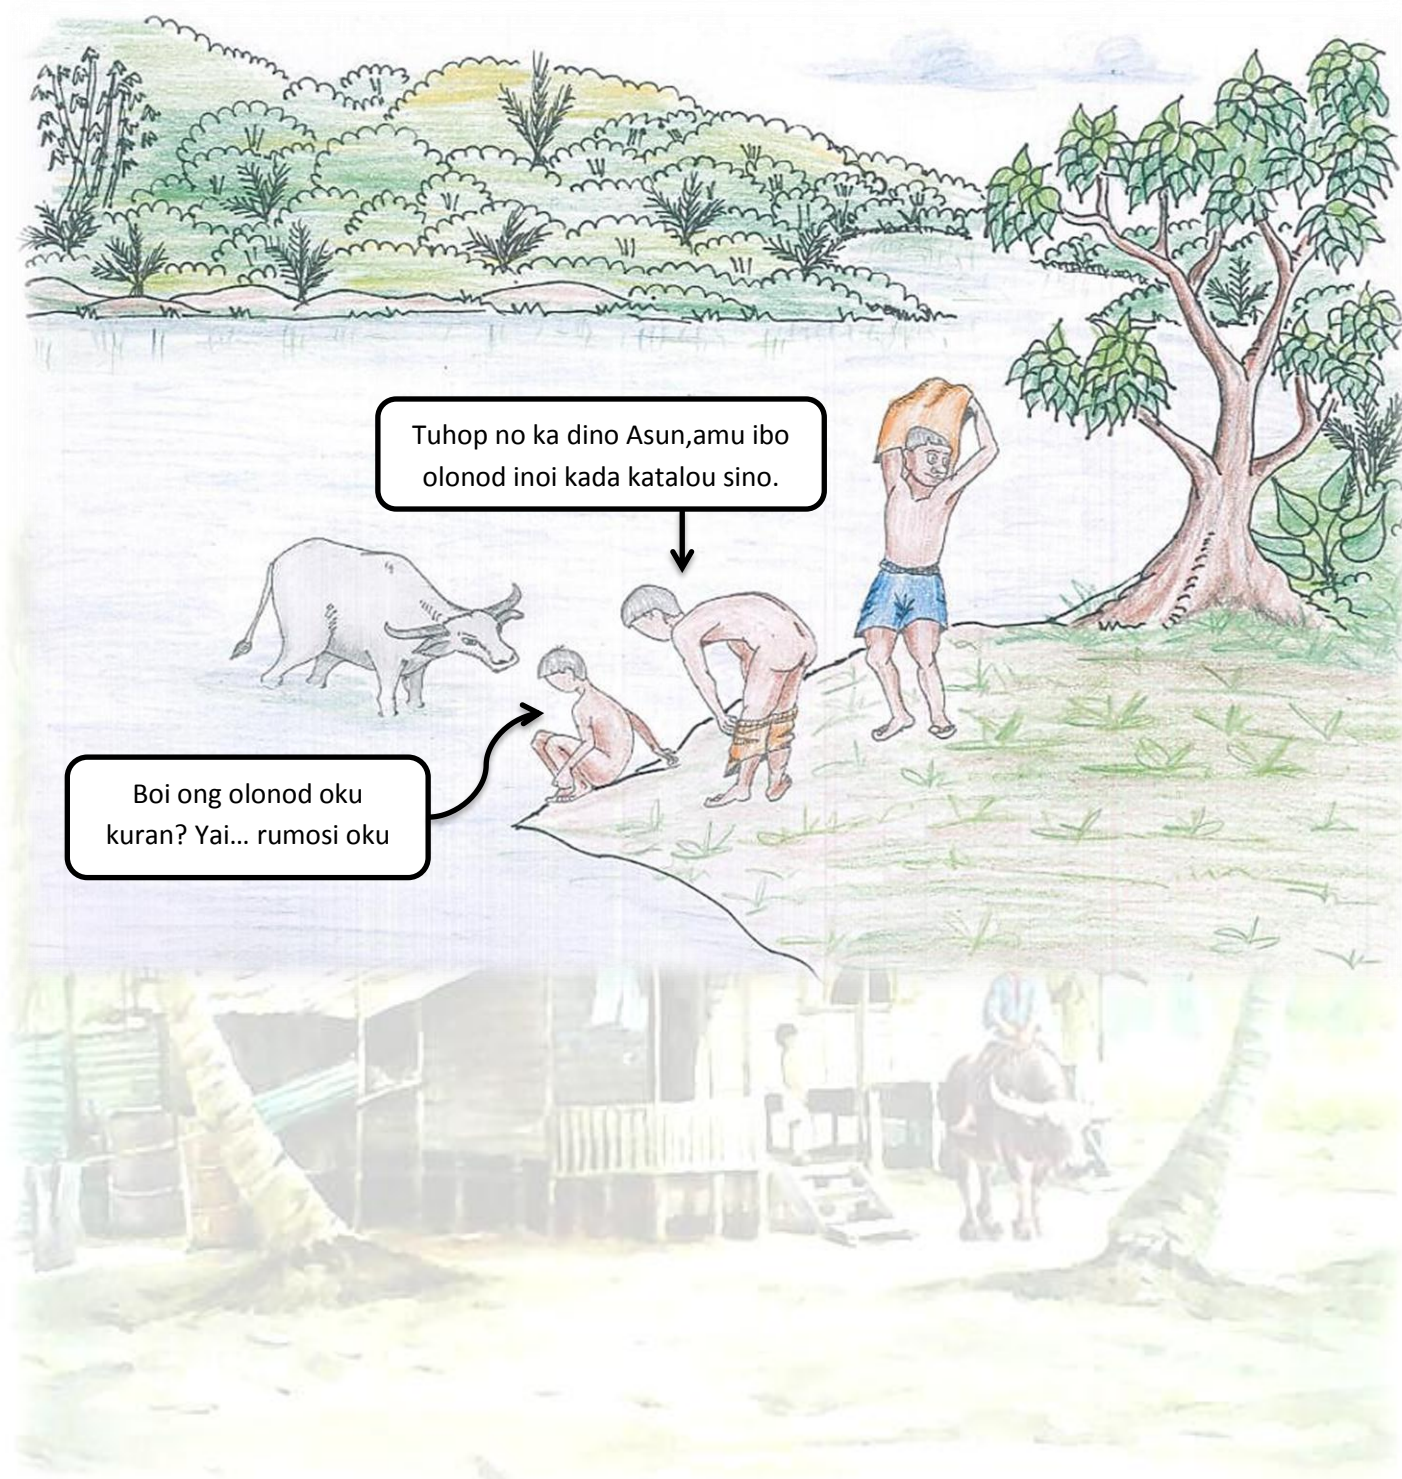

- + It anak dot agazo, i valai dot ulun, it anggai di kuvo, i binatang do Barambangun
- + The difference between using “dit”and “dot” indicates the relationship being general or specific
- + i valai di Asun, it anggai di Parazin, i binatang di Lagan, it anak di Arun, it uva do paranggi.
- + Topot, ong valai do pagong i nagama, varo tukad,
- + Mangakan di parangi i Asun, magandaha ialo di valai do Popot, monurat do surat sid di Daang, i mato dot adau, i Arun manabpo di hakod di Arun.

Take Note: Any person all over the world will be able to read and pronounce this story without having knowledge of Momogun. He/she will be understood, as there is no difference between spelling and pronouncing. The person has only to keep in mind: One does not give any syllable a special stress or emphasis.

3. Lesson The root /stem of words I gamut/puun dit ongopongoretan do Rungus

The European languages like English, French, German, Spaniol ko Italy in use today are a mixture of many languages of different tribes of the past, being influenced by further other languages over the centuries. While Latin, the language of the Roman Empire around the time, when Jesus was living in Palestine, has greatly influenced the European languages until today, these Latinism are today pronounced in different ways, often hardly recognizable as former Latin words. While many forms of words are used in a similiar way in these various langauges as nouns, adjectives, verbs and other parts of speech, most of them follow a certain pattern and can be explained with the same terms: nouns, adjectives, verbs, pronouns, Other languages in the world have often other forms and ways of building compound words (adjectives, verbs, nouns etc). Rungus belongs to this second group of langauges like Hebrew and Arab, Hindi om Kina and many other vernaculars, which use affixes to varify the meaning of an expression.

Yet all forms carrying the meaning of a particular idea (root/stem) derive from the main part of the expression used in communicating with one another. Like a tree which consists first of one root and stem or trunk, from which grow out branches into twigs, from which the leaves and fruitbearing flowers develope the product..

root/stem-branches -twigs-leaves and flowers bringing forward fruits. To explain this developement is called Morphology The developing of forms....

While English uses rather an additional term to explain something e.g.

Note: With the following lessons I shall try to explain along the English Grammar Adjective, noun, verb etc. and add how the Rungus Grammar works. For there is a big difference between English and Rungus and it is not very easy at each time to explain to and from which language rule is prevailing. By using the technical Terms of Linguistics, there are three steps to be described:

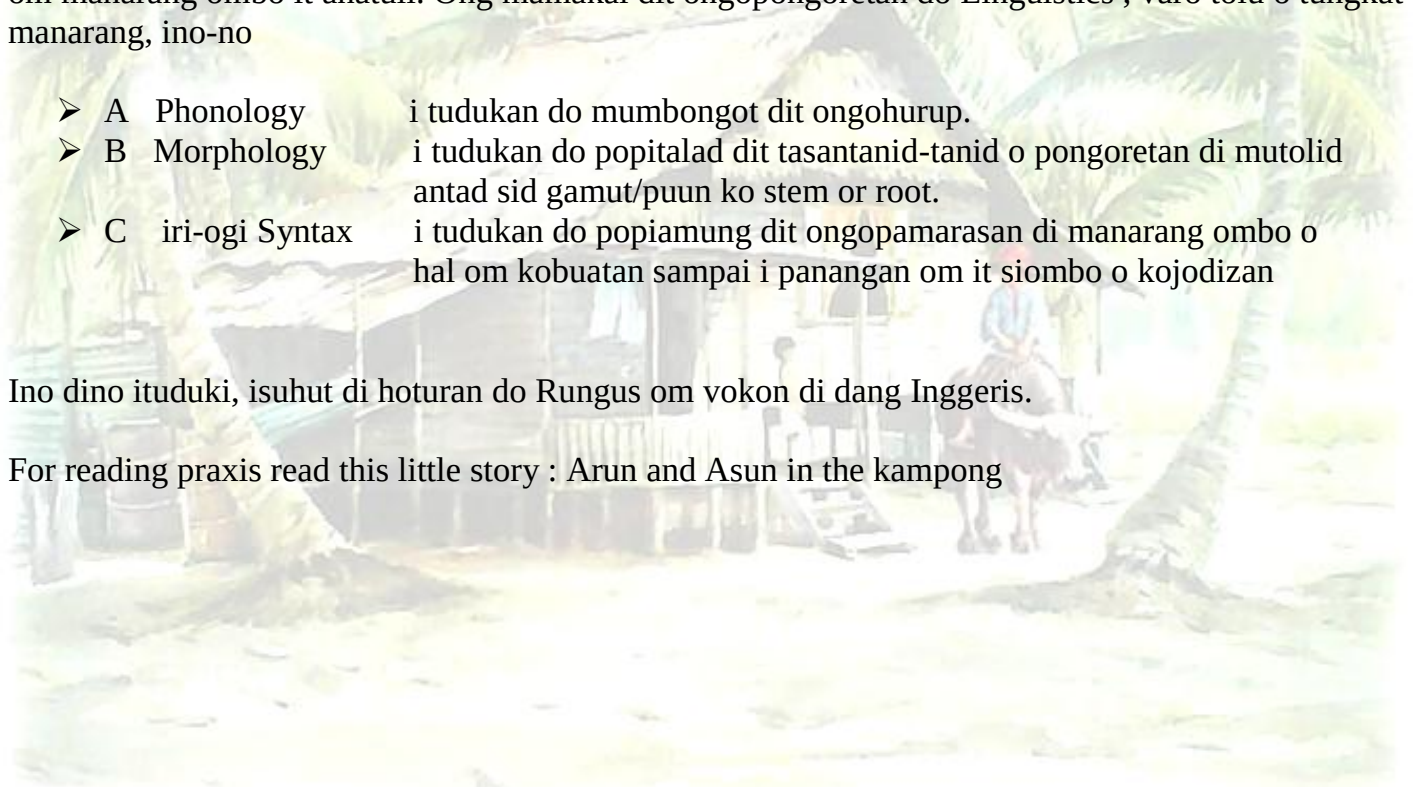

- Phonology the way how the single letters are pronounced
- Morphology how the various affixes give the stem/root various meanings
- Syntax how sentences are put together expressing matters, actions and aims ...

It is necessary at this stage to move to and from following the two language rules. 4. Lesson Nouns I Pongoretan om ngaran do barang

There are different kinds of nouns :

common nouns the cat - it uzing, the dog -it asu, the house - i valai, the head - it ulu, the foot i hakod, the knife i pisau, the book - i buuk, the boat - it alud, the tree - i kazu, the walk - i panau, the wall - i rinding proper nouns or names Asun, Arun, Kudat, Asia, with initial Capital Rungus, Ubian, Dayak, Kudat, Sandakan, Kota Kinabalu, Tenom

abstract nouns the fear i korosizan, the joy i kohigakan the rule i hoturan Plural of nouns ongo- The dogs, it ongoasu, the houses it ongovalai, the days it ongoadau or it inadahan if concerning long past days the men (man) it ongokusai, the women it ongoondu (ongondu) the thoughts = it ongopongitungan, the longhouses it ongobinatang The teeths it ongonipon.

Pronouns

Personal pronouns representing the nouns:

- Arun likes koliabas I Arun tiakan do koliabas
- He picks koliabas iosido mongupu do koliabas

“he” refers to Arun who likes guava he picks them from the tree English and Rungus use three personal pronouns for single persons, matters, nouns and three pronouns for more then one 1st person singular I together with the marker i-oku = ioku The marker is joined to the pronoun. When the pronoun is suffixed to a verb, no “i” Marker is needed

- | | | |
|---------------------|---------------------|------------------------------------|
| ➤ I go = nau-oku | or with emphasis | Ioku o mamananau |
| ➤ 2nd person YOU | I-kau = ikau You go | mamananau-ko ko ikau o mamananau |
| ➤ 3rd person HE /it | Ialo/ izau he goes | mamananau ialo ko izau o mamananau |

Plural More than one many

- | | | | |
|----------------------|----------------------|---------------|--------------------------------|
| ➤ 1st person we go, | mamananau tokou | or emphasized | i tokou o mamananau |
| ➤ 2nd person you go | mamananau-kou | or emphasized | ikou o mamananau |
| ➤ 3rd person they go | mamananau iolo, ioti | or emphasized | iolo o mamananau ko ioti o m.. |

Note: It is a nonsense writing this marker “i” combined with the pronouns with a “y”. This “I” is one phoneme and should not be alternating with “y”. It is a matter of Momogun spelling, not following either the English spelling or BM spelling. ioku, ikau ialo, iolo, iokoi, i tokou....ioti. (Compare how English spelling uses the letter “y”. Learning English means learning each word separately only, why, whisky, yacht, Yankee, year, yes)

Dual form: We two go mamananau kito emph. I kito o mamananau (Rungus is one of a few languages which uses DUAL forms)

Possesive pronouns: My house - valai-ku, Our house - valai-za ko valai di tokou, emphasized i dohon do valai di tokou do valai inclusive) exclusive dahai do valai

- | | | | |
|--------------------------|---------------------|------------------------------------|---------------------------------|

| 3rd Person his/her house | i valai dau | their house | |
| | i valai diolo/dioti | dual valai di kito di kito o valai | |

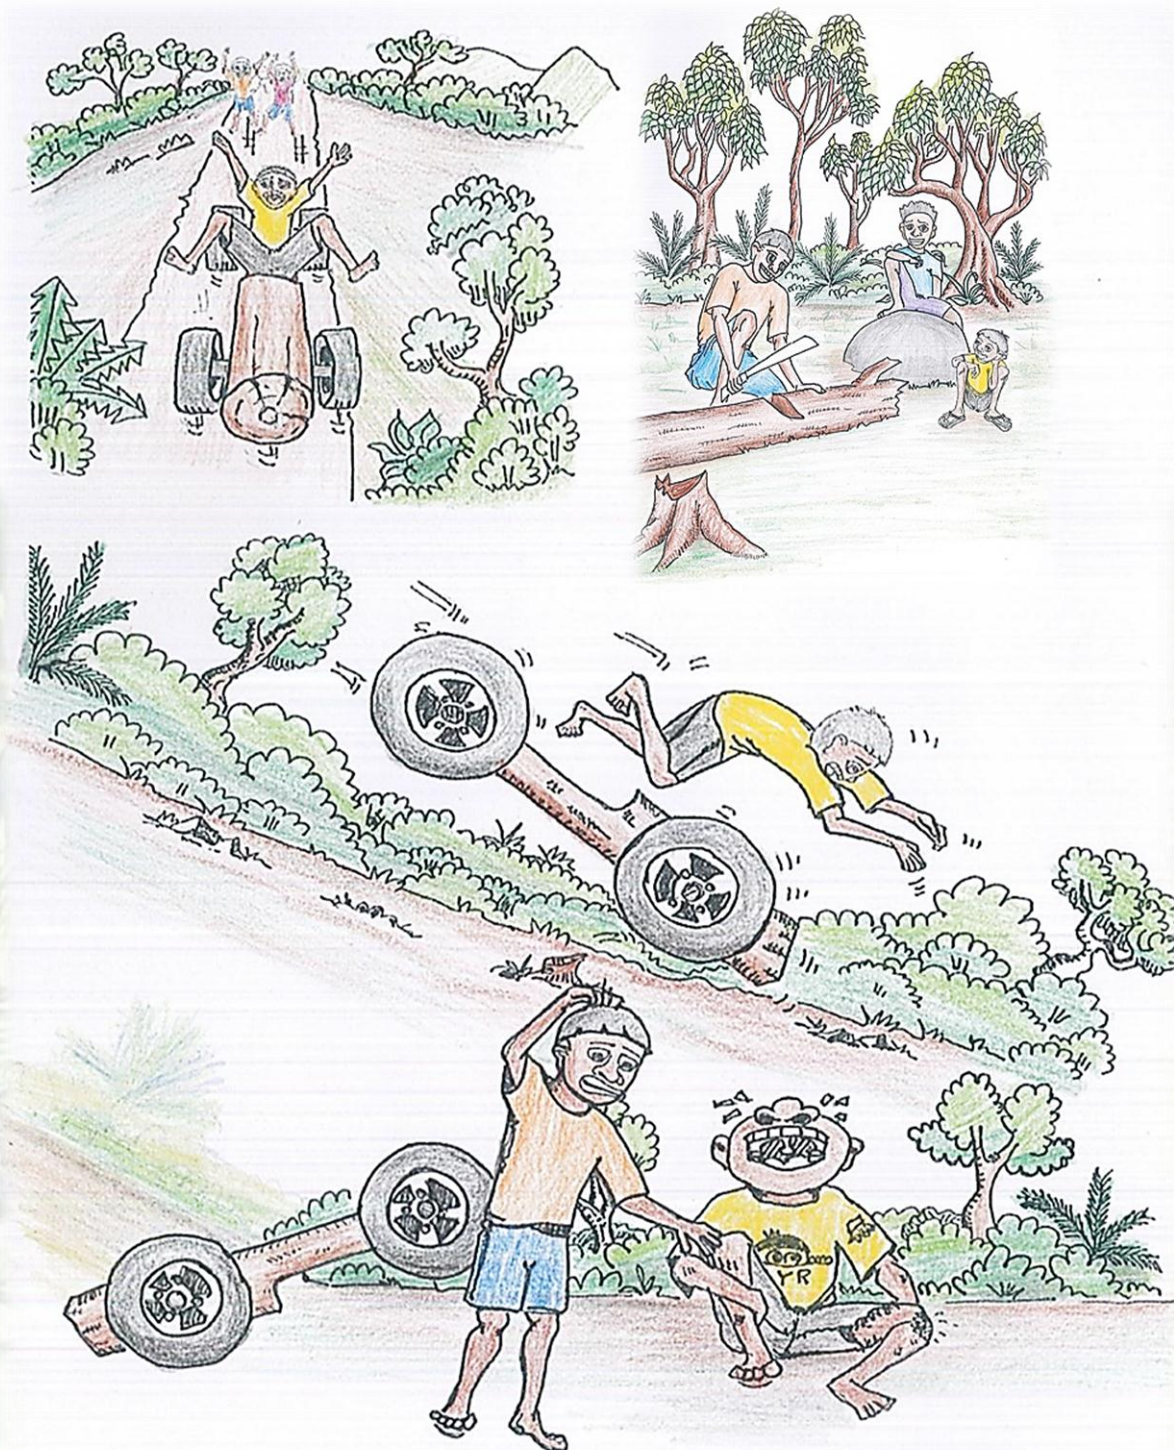

Demonstrative pronouns: point to something which is close by, further away or locally and in matters of time very distant: This Iti, that ino. that far away ilo, In time iri these pronouns use like the marker a final “ti” before a vowel-initial noun. Emphasis repeats the pronoun after the noun This house Iti valai diti, that house ino valai dino, that house far off ilo valai dilo, that house some time ago Iri valai diri

Lokative pronouns: explain the direction or distance of the noun by adding a initial “s” to the demonstrative pronoun siti, sino, silo, sori, siri the house here iti valai siti, the house over there ino valai sino, ilo valai silo, iri valai siri if indicating the place of the object (noun, person) the locator sid changes to sitid, sinod, silod, soirid, sirid We meet at this house Minsamung-okoi sitid valai, the hospital is sorid Ranau that war took place at Iraq i rumpak dino nokosunu sorid Iraq.

5. Lesson Adjective Panarangan di kobuatan ko kogunaan do barang, hal (noun)

The adjective is a word which explains the form, quality, use or relation of nouns. In English it precedes the noun in question The big house The long house The tall tree

I panarangan di kobuatan do barang manarang di kogunaan om kapakazan ko i buatan di nununopo. Vokon nga ogulu di noun, vokon-no ong kosuhut di pongoretan

✚ the clear explanation	i panarangan dit atalahas it atalahas o panarangan
✚ the little food	i kakanan dit okudik it okudik o kakanan

All adjectives in Rungus use a prefix A or O according to the first vowel of the root word and are formed from the root word consisting of

✚ a-langkas	fast	o-doot	slow
✚ o-orod=orod	round	a-lavis	pointed
✚ a-sakau	dirty	a-alus=alus	clean
✚ a-naru	long	o-nibak	short
✚ a-vagat	heavy	a-gaan	light
✚ a-gazo	big, large	o-podok	small, little

This is the English way of describing different functions of a word: Adjectives, nouns, pronouns, adverbs, gerundives, prepositions, conjunctions, verbs in their different use.

6. Lesson MORPHOLOGY I tasantanid-tanid o vaza mamakai di toriso-iso o gamut/puun

The Momogun language has stem morphemes, affix morphemes and non stem words, such as enclitics, conjunctions, articles and interjections. There are three forms of affixation: prefix, infix and suffix

I boros Rungus mamakai di gamut/puun dot tomod manarang di harati. Varo-po ongobahagi do boros di ong kopiamung sid gamut/stem nga monimban om posondot di harati di gamut/puun. Examples:

B.120 compound stems (stems with unproductive prefixes)

B.121 compound stems with prefix mongi + nasal or mi+ nasal (m,n, ng)

✚ Sakot	grass	monginsakot-oku	I cut grass
✚ Savat	height	monginsavat-oku	I put high up
✚ Toron	stay	mintoron-oku	I live
✚ Tutun	to get known intimate	mongintutun-oku	I make known
✚ vozo	follow	pemozo oku (poinbozo)	I give in
✚ guli	return	mingguli-oku	I repeat
✚ kakat	lift	mingkakat-oku	I stand up

The following stems have in addition a reduplication of the first stem syllable, whereby the initial r or l is replaced by voiced plosive d

✚ -raat	bad	mongindaraat-oku	I slander
✚ Longoi	song	mindolongoi-oku	I sing
✚ ronok	fear	mongindoronok-oku	I threaten

B.122 compound stems with prefix o + nasal

Diri	oneself.	mondiri	stick for climbing beans
Tizan	abdomen.	mogontizan-oku	I am pregnant

B.123 compound stems with prefix u + nasal (m, n, ng)

Palad	hand (palm)	mumpalad-oku	I keep for myself
daliu	change.	mundaliu it kinomol	the rice wine ferments
alad	wing.	mungkalad it vusak	the flower unfolds

2.60 Articles and pronouns

2.61 the articles

You notice that before every noun or name is a marker, in English called article. With lesson two you learned how to use such markers before names and objects indicating the position of the noun or pronoun in the sentence.

Sid Rungus atalahas dokodung varo boros kananganko hal, ngaran ko pongoretan om ngaran do barang, varo-no apakai i, or it omo ko ot do tomod pentahan do varo hal dit atarangani. Iadino, nitarang laid sid tutukan koduvo, ino-no:.

Second Lesson: The marker or article, which points out and qualifies that a noun follows There are two articles in English, a definite and an indefinite article or marker

a) indefinitive marker: a man, a woman, a house, a thing, a school, a tool, a pencil, a problem panarangan do bai apajak manarang varo ulun, kusai, binatang, himbaan In English in front of a noun with an initial vowel, an “n” is added: an egg, an elephant, an apple, an animal

b) the definite marker: The house, the boy, the girl, the door, the church, the office, the tree, which refers to a particular house, boy, girl, door or church... The Rungus marker, ino-no i hurup di manarang ombo i pongoretan o sumuhut, i retan dot Adjective (ong English) i (it), di (dit), o (ot), do (dot) apakai pengkaa dino: is “i” followed by a “t” before nouns with an initial vowel: i valai, it uva, i riniba, i pomogunan, i kampong, i vulan, i pongitungan, i kavavalazan but/topot it anak, it aki, i karabau, i pongitungan, i vusak, it uva, it ombuvoi, it ongkukul, ong kodung i pongoretan varo kiuni sid kotimpuunan

Referring to any house uses the marker “varo” Varo valai sid himbaan, varo’t ulun sid sulap. Ong apajak manarang do hal, iri-ogi Varo’t ulun, varo kazu, varo pongitungan om i iadino Different from English which only uses the article “the” and “a” for any noun, -apajak ko avalang it ombo ,whether being the subject or object in the sentence, Rungus uses a marker “di/dit” and “do/dot” before the noun, when the noun/name is not the subject of the matter expressed. It anak dot agazo, i valai dot ulun, it anggai di kuvo, i binatang do Barambangun

The difference between using “dit”and “dot” indicates the relationship being general or specific. Ino-no i pitonidan suvai “dit” , to avalangi, ko “dot” ong apajak momoros i valai di Asun, it anggai di Parazin, i binatang di Lagan, it anak di Arun, it uva do paranggi. Topot, ong valai do pagong i nagama, nga varo tukad, Mangkanan do parangi di Asun, magandaha-oku di valai do Popot, monurat-ko do surat sid di Daang i mato dot adau, i Arun manabpo di hakod di Arun.

Minsanko nakapanarang sid lesson laid, insan-po osodiri siti i kogunaan dit ongoonibak o pamarasan di manarang di tomodon ko i kogunaan di pongoretan ko ngaran. Ong sid Bahasa Melayu, aso article sampai banalko apagon dot it onoguru manarang dit ongoarticle sid Boros English, om lobipo sid German om Yunani om vokon it ongoboros sid sompomogunan di monodiri-po di hal do subject, ko hal dot asanganu ko siombo ponong i hal om bahagi isai i kogunaan di barang ko hal.

2.61 The articles I suput di mamalang di tomodon do pongoretan (Noun) There are three articles (markers of substantives) i it is the personal article before names of person I valai I Angkap i oboros-no. Ong varo kiuni sid ulu do pongoretan, iri-ogi inamung i hurup t. Bai sid ngaran, amu apakaii: i rondogung, topot it uva, i taap, it onsung

o/ot is the vocative article when adressing a person by name, ong tumoguvang dot ulun, apakai do kumiboros sid dau dot, O Angkap ko turu ot uva, limo ot ulun

- it marks the substantive or substantified subject
- ot marks the suppositioned substantive, or substantified subject
- dit marks the attribute, if attribute is a known or certain person or thing or singularity
Valai dit ongoulun, it ongokadai dit Ongokina
- dot marks the apposition, if the latter is general term valai dot ongoulun or collective name

The collective prefix son-/ san- (2.462) stands also in place of an article. son-/san- (som-son-song) mamalang ong varo apajak ot otuboros. sompomogunan ⇨ Sombinatang, ⇨ songoulun

After the preposition sid only direct names of persons use the personal article. Sid himbaan, sid valai di Sopirid

The final -t of the articles is left unpronounced in fast speech, especially if the following substantive has an initial consonant. It is, for convenience, not produced in writing.
